

Overview

Our team is led by experienced malpractice defense trial lawyers who instill a deep sense of appreciation for practitioners in the healthcare community, borne out of the teamwork that comes with the intense preparation and trial of medical malpractice cases.

We have expertise in handling all matters of claims related to healthcare professionals and entities, as well as their individual licensure. Our long-standing regard in this community speaks to our success and our committed relationship with our clients. Our experience defending medical malpractice cases through trial drives a focused planning process and nuanced approach in workup of the lawsuit.

We understand that malpractice cases have a strong impact on healthcare providers personally, on healthcare systems publicly, and all of our clients financially. Our goal is to keep that impact positive.
