Ellicia J. Clark defends clients in insurance coverage matters, particularly those involving personal injury, contract disputes and other business litigation, disability discrimination, and property damage. Whether advocating for an individual, a professional, or an organization, she is committed to approaching each matter with diligence, compassion, and a strong sense of responsibility to her clients.

Ellicia J. Clark defends clients in insurance coverage matters, particularly those involving personal injury, contract disputes and other business litigation, disability discrimination, and property damage. She also has experience analyzing and interpreting complex contracts for a major defense contractor.

Ms. Clark was drawn to the legal profession because she's always believed in the importance of having a voice when it matters most. Her passion for law comes from a genuine desire to help people, advocate for fairness, and ensure that individuals and organizations are treated justly. As a defense attorney, she strives to understand each client's circumstances, thoughtfully evaluate the issues presented, and provide practical, effective representation while ensuring that clients' interests and perspectives are fully heard. Whether advocating for an individual, a professional, or an organization, she is committed to approaching each matter with diligence, compassion, and a strong sense of responsibility to her clients.
